FOR RACE AND NATION

TORIES SELL BRITAIN OUT

Most people have now rumoured the Tory's bogus 'patriotic' credentials. The high publicity given over to the surrender of British sovereignty to the Europeans has seen to that. Even so, their record shows that on every aspect of policy since the war, the Tories are the great betrayers. It is precisely because of their 'patriotic' perception that the Tories have got away with so much — which if practised by Labour would have caused a storm. What then is the Tory record of betrayal?

The first greatest act of betrayal after the war was by Harold MacMillan, the Tory Prime Minister who sent the junior Minister for Transport, Enoch Powell, over to the West Indies to recruit coloured labour. Enoch Powell of course later realised that such a policy was absolutely disastrous. Nevertheless, the policy continued. The legacy has been race riots and a seriously destabilised society with a direct connection between that destabilisation and immigration. The accompaniment has been rocketing crime and drug abuse — all thanks to the Tories.

Thatcher was no different. Her famous speech before the 1979 General Election when she said that she sympathised with people who felt that they were being 'swamped', was a lie. Thatcher's first action as Prime Minister was to admit thousands of Vietnamese 'boat-people'. Her predecessor, Ted Heath let in thousands of Ugandan Asians. Immigration through the Thatcher years to date has run at a minimum of 50,000 per year, with peaks of double that.

The hot air over Europe is another case where Tories have nothing to shout about. It was that same Ted Heath who gave us the Treaty of Rome. And it was Thatcher who has given us the Single European Act and the Maastricht Treaty. A Tory Chancellor is preparing to take us into a single currency. A Tory Prime Minister refuses to renounce it. A Tory Defence Secretary is integrating us further within a European defence system.

That same Tory Prime Minister is so spineless, that British fishermen from the Channel Islands have been abandoned to the bully-boy tactics of illegal French fishermen, protected by the French navy. It is also John Major, who made such a huff and puff over the beef crisis, who has surrendered to the Europeans and agreed to cull another 100,000 healthy cattle with no prospect of the EU lifting the ban. Even the much publicised lifting of the gelatin ban has been reversed. Our EU 'partners' are simply punishing us for their own enjoyment.

So-called Tory 'Euro-sceptics' live in a fantasy world where they believe they can retain some EU institutions and policies but repudiate others. John Redwood says we cannot leave the EU.

THE SOLUTION

The fact is that sovereignty, like prosperity, can only be regained by repealing the Treaty of Accession of 1972 and all subsequent amendments. It is the Treaty of Rome which provides for European federalism in the shape of the European Court, the Commission and majority voting in the Council of Ministers. British independence and sovereignty have been stealthily given away bit by bit.

These are the facts. The Tories are the party of betrayal and have been since the war. The plastic Union flags they wave at conference time mask treason. Last year, John Major guaranteed entry into the UK to 3 million Hong Kong Chinese on top of the 2 million granted entry by Thatcher. How many will come is open to speculation. Potentially, it could be 5 million and if China gets nasty, it will be. It is no coincidence that 4.4 million new homes are said to be needed urgently. Typically, the argument has been focussed on where the new homes are to be built — in the countryside or in existing towns and cities. That argument neatly camouflages the bigger question: How many more immigrants is this country to take in? At the same time the Tories have paid off their £18 million debt and built up a huge war chest — and all at a time of declining membership. The Tories refuse to say how much foreign donations, particularly from Hong Kong, amount to. The Tories have betrayed the country for money. Bluntly, they are the party of treason. Nothing will change even if Labour win office this Spring. They too are 'hot' for Europe and more immigration.

The difference between those parties' policies and that of the BNP could not be more clear. A BNP government would not stand for the nonsense of the Europeans. We would leave the EU. It is as simple as that. Britain once more would be a proud and free nation, able to trade freely and hold its head up once again. Industry and the economy would boom. BNP social policy would stop immigration and return immigrants here to their ancestral homelands — to the benefit of all concerned. The crime and disorder that has plagued Britain since the war would come to an end. The British National Party holds out the prospect of freedom, prosperity and societal peace. The contrast could not be more stark.

HEATH: Signed away British independence in the Treaty of Rome, and admitted hundreds of thousands of immigrants.

THATCHER: Signed Maastricht Treaty & the Single European Act, and admitted hundreds of thousands of immigrants.

THE NEW RACISM

Racism is the assertion of a superiority of one race over another by discrimination. A new age of racism is opening up in Britain. It is the age of anti-white racism and anti-white discrimination. Elsewhere in BN we detail examples of anti-white racism, some of it successfully challenged in the courts. It is ironic that just as the Americans have thrown out so-called 'positive' discrimination in California, some advocate it for Britain.

The evil Commission for Racial Equality (CRE) which spends much time sheltering race murderers has been 'advising' the Civil Service on how to avoid discrimination — and promptly did the same thing in reverse. The impending case in which it is named as co-respondent will hopefully severely curb its scope for further anti-white racism and discrimination.

In Cleveland, the same organisation was found guilty of discriminating against a white employee, Mr. Widlinski, and telling lies to queries made on behalf of Widlinski to a Labour MP and MEP. Widlinski was offered the job and then told it had gone to an Asian woman. Later, he was passed over in favour of a lesser-qualified black man. Widlinski is to send a copy of the Industrial Tribunal ruling to every organisation providing funding to Cleveland CRE, urging suspension of further funding.

Racism could not exist in Britain without the presence of the large numbers of immigrants and their offspring who have come to Britain in the last forty years or so. Racism does exist and more and more of it is being directed at white people. This turn of events puts the British National Party at the forefront of anti-racism.

In the post colonial world in which we live in, the sensible thing to do is for each race and culture to live in dignity within its own borders and its own lands. It is anti-racism in the very best sense of the term.

THE SHABBY TREATMENT OF OUR OLD FOLK

Anger over cuts to war pensions last month, occupied the attention of the nation for all of two minutes. Labour leaders rightly blasted penny pinching Tories for the cuts, but they themselves are hardly blameless with Labour councils clawing back money from pensioners too. The wider question of how this country treats its old folk as a whole was not addressed. Not just what kind of pension our old folk get, but their position in society.

PENSIONS

Prime Minister John Major denied that plans to 'simplify' war pensions would mean that war pensioners would lose any money. As usual, John Major is 'dissembling'. While war pensioners may not lose any existing pension, they will lose increases related to their deteriorating hearing conditions brought on by war — usually close proximity explosions. Documents show that the 'simplification' proposals will result in 7,000—10,000 pensioners losing out and saving the Treasury £35 million. Other 'efficiency' savings amount to £15 million. Tony Blair called the government "shabby and mean minded," while Tory MP for Davyhulme, Winston Churchill called the proposal "cheap, mean, nasty and utterly unworthy."

The government knows that it has been caught out and is desperately trying to buy off ex-service groups to split the protest and cover up its shabby dodge. The extra money amounts to a fraction of what the government expects to save, but Major hopes to buy off amputees with clothing and families of disabled war pensioners with funeral expenses. At the end of the day, the government is robbing Britain's war pensioners just as surely as if it were to wait outside the post office, as so many jackals do, and steal their pittance of a pension.

Labour are no better. Despite 'Tory' Blair's fine words, eighteen Labour councils deprive war pensioners of three-quarters of their pensions on means tested benefit rules. Most councils allow war pensioners to keep the pension even though they could take all but the £10 minimum. The eighteen Labour councils which claw back the war pension are Barnsley, Bristol, Bridgnorth, Chester-le-Street, Derwentside, Durham, Easington, Gateshead, Liverpool, Manchester, Middlesborough, Newcastle upon Tyne, North Tyneside, Norwich, Oswestry, Redcar & Cleveland, Sheffield, South Tyneside, Sunderland and Wakefield.

British pensioners had their earnings related pension increases scrapped by Thatcher in the early eighties. Pension increases are now related to the questionable retail price index which is skewed against purchases typically made by pensioners. As a result, British pensioners have one of the lowest standards of living in Europe. Pensioners often have a choice whether to buy food or to put the heating on. Thousands live in poverty and many die each winter of hypothermia.

WWI soldier. What did they fight for?

The feeling of injustice is country-wide. Letters from people all over the country are printed in local papers every week. One in the Wigan Reporter read:

Sir- What kind of a mess has this country been put in during the last 30 years or so? I am non-political, just an old man who is ashamed to be British.

During WWII, I fought for this country and, because I received a bullet in the head, now receive a war disability pension. Working in London my services were needed after 65, so I worked full time until I was 69, paying taxes.

Consequently my old age pension is higher than most. Now at 74 I have to look after my wife for the next few months, as she has broken her hip. As I am disabled myself I find it difficult to cook, clean, shop and look after my wife.

I asked the welfare for help, but I find I am penalised because my income is above a certain level and so I have to pay for help.

Yet an immigrant just entering this country, who hasn't paid any tax or been of any service to this country, can get these services free.

Old people are being penalised today because they have saved all their lives for comfort in their old age.

Immigrants are given accommodation money to live on and other help. This is from the money we have been paying in taxes all our lives. We are entitled to nothing. This country has got its priorities all wrong.

It is a fact that if I had fought for Germany I would have been treated better financially and all other ways. It is the young people I feel sorry for as Britain is a country without hope.

J. Wright, Wigan.

CRIME

Certainly, British pensions are a national disgrace. But it isn't just on pensions where Britain treats its old folk badly. The rise of crime means that many old folk live in fear of being mugged for their meagre pensions, of being murdered and even raped.

In Lincolnshire, 73-year-old Vera Laver was raped while walking through her quiet village of Tetney. Tackled to the ground just yards from her home and raped, she died from a stroke just hours after the attack.

In Birmingham, a blind widow was battered to the ground for £10. The muggers, described by police as "absolute scum", attacked and robbed her as she lay on the floor. Her guide dog was kicked during the robbery which occurred in broad daylight.

Also in Brum, a couple in their nineties were robbed in their own home by masked raiders. They were pulled from their beds at 1.30a.m. and forced to reveal the whereabouts of cash and valuables.

In Sussex, a 94-year-old widow was tending the grave of her husband when 6' 2" Steven Barton pushed her to the ground and raped her. At Chichester Crown Court Barton, now 17, was gaoled for 12 years for the disgusting attack. The widow who was not named in court said that Barton laughed at her fruitless struggle to get free.

Elderly widow, Sheila Cragg, 74, was battered by a man of about 20 who mugged her and stole her handbag in Nottingham. She was found unconscious lying on the pavement and taken to hospital where x-rays revealed a broken leg. Sheila needed a metal pin inserted into her thigh. Sheila said afterwards: "I just said to him 'I haven't got any money,' and he knocked me to the floor." Sheila incidentally, like so many others, is probably reflecting on the 'benefits' of the multi-racial society.

Another woman, frail Helen Bootle, 92, was mugged in Manchester for her pension. Helen died from her head injuries five days after being battered to the ground outside the post office. She never regained consciousness.

The old in this country are left quite without hope. The Tories stopped the link between pensions and earnings, the loss of which now worth about £20 per week to most, and it is the Tories who are attacking war pensions. Labour, despite their words — which come cheap to Labour these days — are also robbing pensioners at council level. The old have been used and now in their twilight years, they are being abused.

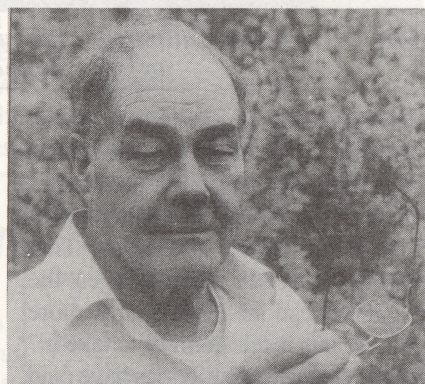

The British National Party takes an entirely different view from the other parties. The BNP has always maintained in every manifesto it has issued that the old would be a priority. Under a BNP government, the old would not have to make a choice between starving or freezing. Pensions would be raised and a heating allowance would be given to all our old folk.

The BNP recognises that the quality of life doesn't just rest on money alone. In times gone past, women and old folk could walk through the roughest parts of the East End of London or of Glasgow or a host of other towns and cities and feel safe, but no longer. Under a BNP government the multi-racial nightmare would be ended. An entirely different atmosphere would ensue. Old ladies would be able to collect their pensions without the prospect of being mugged. If they were of a mind, they could walk out of an evening secure in the knowledge that they would be safe. There would be respect for the elderly and respect for law and order.

The BNP cares passionately about the welfare of our people. Our old folk deserve a better quality of life — decent pensions, heating allowances and the security of a safe society. Under the BNP, they would get it.

Join up - join the resistance!

The Arab owner of Harrods boasts you can buy anything there — including Conservative MPs. Yet another Tory MP has waddled off into the sunset, his pockets stuffed with plain brown envelopes of used notes. It's time to end their bogus party game.

The honourable gentlemen of the House are a prize collection of crooks, perverts, alcoholics, shysters, cowards and conmen.

They have produced volumes of hot air while Britain has plunged to the bottom of the European pile. They approve of this nation becoming a cheap labour colony for Asiatic capital.

Homelessness and poverty have reached record levels while they have awarded themselves massive pay increases.

Pensioners struggling to make ends meet should know that the index-linked Parliamentary pension scheme is highly generous and way ahead of anything provided by any public company.

The great problems facing Britain can't be solved by the Conservative-Labour pantomime horse. A new beginning is required.

Before it's too late — join the resistance, join the BNP

THE ECONOMY — BEST SHAPE FOR A GENERATION?

Chancellor Kenneth Clarke has boasted that the economy is in the best shape for a generation. Three months ago, no serious commentator on economics could be found to say anything good about the economy at all. What has changed? The answer apparently, is a one-of fall in unemployment of 95,000 produced by the government's new job seekers charter, designed to scare off people from claiming benefit, throw people off benefit who do not understand the rules and force black economy workers to choose between their job and signing on, and lastly of course the fact that there is always a seasonal drop in unemployment at this time of year anyway!

Nevertheless, the government's own figures show that economic output expanded slower than spending which means higher import bills — confirmed again by figures showing that Britain's trade deficit was 'only' £2.9 billion over the last three months compared to the £3.2 billion in the three months before that, and a similar figure for the first three months of the year.

Clarke is a charlatan who operates with smoke and mirrors. By simple mathematics it can be seen that Britain's trade deficit this year is going to be roughly some £12 billion. At the same time, the government's borrowing this year to finance expenditure in excess of income is going to be some £32 billion. The total deficit is then, £44 billion — £786 for every man woman and child in the country. Quite simply, the government is living beyond its means, which could only be justified if the borrowing was for investment and eventual economic return. That is not the case. In the meantime, the government has given out an unsustainable preelection tax bribe.

Britain needs to make its own PCs. Asiatic screwdriver assembly plants are not enough Taxes will have to go up again after the next election whoever wins.

Cases of embezzlement and fraud regularly come before the courts where some character has been living way beyond his means on other people's money. That is essentially what is happening now with Great Britain Plc. And it is Kenneth Clarke who should be in the dock.

JOB LOSSES

Meanwhile back in the real world, 1,200 workers in Scotland were given a Christmas they wouldn't forget when they were told they were being made redundant. Kvaerner Govan, the ship builders, has told 500 that unless new orders emerge, they were for the chop, and 336 have been made redundant at Crawfords the bakers; another 394 are praying for a buyer to save their jobs.

Other jobs lost recently include LucasVarity cutting 3,000 jobs in its various companies of which 1,500 will be in the UK. Affected companies include Lucas Heavy Duty Products in West London, Lucas Nitrotec and Lucas Assembly and Test Systems, both in Birmingham.

More job losses have been announced at Southern Water which is slashing its workforce by half and axing 2,000 workers, and at GEC which is slashing 1,000 jobs.

Still, there is good news. Pizza Hut reckons to create 5,000 jobs over the next three years spread all over the country!

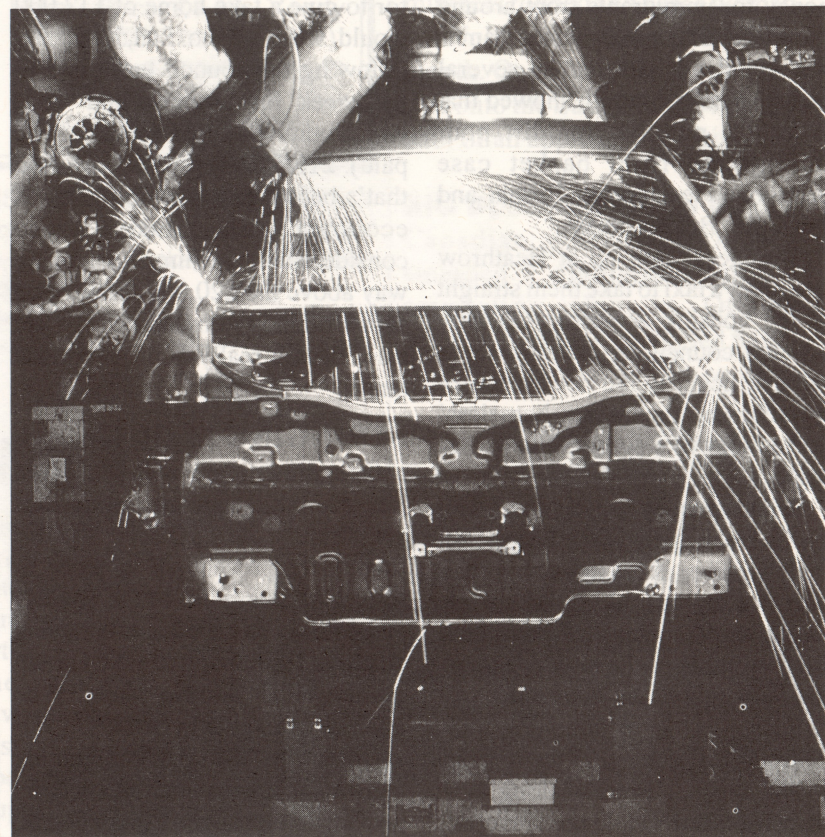

Even a casual observer can see what is going wrong with our economy. Highly paid, highly skilled jobs are being lost, and are being replaced by low paid, low skilled, and part time jobs. In addition, they are mostly jobs in the service sector. Qualified engineers will no doubt be able to spin pizzas on a fifth of their previous salary. Government boasts of falling unemployment are a hollow sham and cruel deception.

The British National Party recognises that the only basis for high living standards to be maintained is to get back into manufacturing and to make the goods which we presently import from abroad: cars, motor bikes, fridges, washing machines, televisions, cameras, VCRs, machine tools, computers and semi conductors. The potential for mass employment and the creation of highly paid, highly skilled jobs scarcely needs stating. Only a policy of gradual restriction of these imports combined with a government-industry strategy

Semi-conductor production is concentrated in the US and the pacific rim. Britain must produce its own.

Labour nor Tories will contemplate any of these policies. In the meantime, Britain will become a European backwater service economy, with a progressively poorer standard of living.

HIGH-TECH INDUSTRY: Automated car plant at Vauxhall. Despite appearances to the contrary, this plant provides substantial highly paid and highly skilled employment. Britain needs more of this kind of plant, producing consumer durables of every kind.

LOW-WAGE ECONOMY SPREADS

A report from the University of Bath has revealed that middle-aged men are dropping into Britain's low pay ghetto, usually associated with women and the young. Bath University says that the number of men on low pay has quadrupled in the last 30 years. Using official data, Bath found that 4.6 million people in work (22 per cent of the workforce) are low paid and that the number of working households in poverty has risen from 3 per cent in 1960 to 12 per cent today mirroring the increase of men receiving low pay.

CHANCELLOR CLARKE: Indebting the nation's children to pay for tax cuts and government incompetence

A FESTIVE NEW YEAR CURRYWATCH

After all the stodgy traditional British fare that people will have had to put up with over the festive season, thousands who have gagged on Christmas dinners of Turkey, Duck, Chicken and roast beef etc. will now be able to get down to their local Balti House to see what's good and savour some of that good ethnic cooking!

In Leicester, Shamsul Haque operated the Akash Restaurant where the authentic ethnic eating experience could be found at its best. Chicken with ingrained dirt could be had along with rice, cigarette ash and sweet wrappers from a kitchen with grease running down kitchen walls. That wasn't to say that no thought was given to hygiene. Oh no! Kitchen staff wore filthy overalls to keep themselves clean and used cloths to keep the floor clean before using them to clean shelves to store food. Picky Health Inspectors claimed that food containers were kept open to help flies etc. do their thing, and that kitchen surfaces were in such a state that cleanliness wasn't possible. One miserable character in particular objected to staff dropping spoons on the floor which had an accumulation of dirt and grease and then simply picking them up again to prepare food. Inspectors further complained that they gave Haque time to improve but found the same conditions months later. Haque was fined £1,100 with £1,500 costs.

Pitsea's famed Bilash Restaurant (see last month's BN) gets another award this month. The Bilash, noted for its owner threatening to kill customers and refusing service, has also been at the centre of a 'dead flies in our poppadom' scandal. Courageous curry fan Lee Smith took his girlfriend to the Bilash to tuck into a tasty poppadom and chutney with several dead flies. Boring Lee immediately complained and demanded a free meal. Staff agreed but the manager (of "I will kill them" fame) refused and demanded that the couple pay. Police were called to restore calm to what was obviously an exciting evening for Lee and his girlfriend.

Another exotic eating experience could have been had at the Man Fu Kung restaurant in Camden until finicky Health Inspectors closed it down over quite mild contraventions of the health code. Health Inspectors found rotting food ready to be sold to customers, namely a chicken with a mouldy crust which showed signs that the bottom layer had been scooped out. In addition, the restaurant was overrun with mice, furniture was infested, the basement was full of rusting, dirty kitchen equipment and 'unsafe' food handling and reheating practices were operated. BN can only ask was that all? I mean, come on chaps, give these guys a break!

Lastly, Currywatch readers will have been devastated to hear that British doctors have branded Balti meals as unhealthy. The report from the Overseas Doctors association claims that Asians in Britain have a 42 per cent greater risk of developing heart disease than Europeans. Balti meals include a big spoonful of cholesterol-inducing ghee, a clarified butter. Doctors say the ghee may make meals delicious, but they also turn them into a plateful of fat.

Bon appetit!

GOOD NEWS FOR IMMIGRANTS — BRITAIN IS THE PROMISED LAND!

Britain is still a land of milk and honey for immigrants from around the world. The multi-racial dream is not yet dead! Stories in several newspapers last month showed that it is still possible for dirt poor immigrants from basket case economies to come to Britain and fulfil the 'British dream.'

'Refugees' turn up at Heathrow and order a taxi to take them straight to the housing department of any London council, or alternatively a railway ticket to the destination of their choice. 'Emergency homeless' is the ticket to a cushy billet for the night.

British people may have to wait on the housing list a little longer, but their sacrifice is not in vain — their sacrifice for the multi-racial society by putting others ahead of themselves is an example of the milk of human kindness that flows in us all!

Ensconced in a three- or four-bedroom house, they can then engage in the black economy along with their friends who told them to come to Britain in the first place. With rent paid for and benefit of £106 per week for a couple with children plus child benefit, the income package comes to (assuming rent of £125 for a three-bedroom house) £12,000 per annum (excluding child benefit).

An illegal working the black economy

Which if it had to have been worked for to give a take home of £12,000 would work out to £18,500 gross (allowing for council tax, say £10 per week for husband and wife, which otherwise does not have to be paid). £18,500 — not bad eh? And that's before earnings on the black economy are taken into consideration, pushing up income way above the £20,000 mark. Who says Britain is stony broke? It's not true. Britain really is the promised land!

STRINGING IT OUT

Government attempts to return illegal immigrants to their homelands are failing since there are no fingerprint procedures in place to stop them going out of the country and coming straight back in having destroyed their papers and claiming asylum under another name. Who after all can say otherwise?

Other tips the government are unaware of are that if an escort is not provided to the aircraft, the deportee, may simply hide in the airport toilets for a couple of hours before coming back out as if nothing had happened.

Another really good dodge is for 'refugees' to claim asylum for the husband and dependancy for the wife. The appeals' procedure has a backlog of 80,000 and takes three years to exhaust. Once (or if) the claim is rejected, the wife then submits an asylum claim and the husband is the dependant! Each case has to be scrupulously investigated and will take another three years. By which time of course, legions of offspring count towards them staying. After all, they'll be British born, and Britain will be the only life the children know. Heartrending isn't it?

● One family clearly not 'playing the game' were arrested in Preston and Blackburn Lancashire in a £2 million DSS benefit and insurance scam not so long ago and eleven family members were arrested. That came not long after another Asian family were arrested on a £200,000 DSS fraud also from Blackburn. All have been released on police bail.

● Since an appeal court judge ruled that withdrawal of benefits from asylum seekers was unlawful, the government has been waiting the outcome of an appeal against the appeal. It is due this month. The outcome is almost certain to be that the government cannot restrict benefits to anyone who chooses to claim them.

Classic Stories of multi-racial Britain

A classic story was told in the paper of the Immigration Service Union. A middle Easterner obtained entry to Britain by showing a scar he claimed was a bullet wound. He then wrote to his brother (the note was found when his brother came to Britain). It said: 'What we were told is true. I have been given a fine house, I have a good job and every week I am given money as well.

Go to the agent and pay him the money I sent you. When you arrive, show the wound from when you were shot while stealing sheep, but do not say this. Say you were shot by police and they will be certain to let you in to join me.'

The BBC and Mind Control

For years the 'British' Broadcasting Corporation has peddled an insidious anti-white, anti-British poison. Casual violence, drug culture, mixed race and 'gay' relationships and of course, all manner of anti-British trash has poured into living rooms. Any pro-British sentiment of course, is always depicted as from 'racists', haters and buffoons. The unreality of the Beeb allows no such thing as a decent nationalist and patriot.

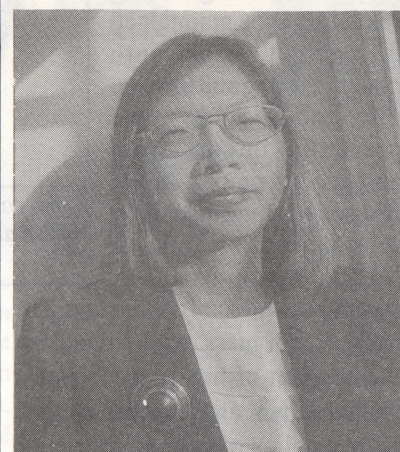

Now promotions for white, particularly male, staff at the BBC have been put on hold as the Beeb plans to double the number of women executives in the next year and boost its ethnic minority quota to 10 per cent.

This follows on from the BBC spending thousands in workshops with 'Quality and Equality' run by Dr Mee-Yan Cheung-Judge. The Stalinist vision she offers is eerily similar to the discredited quota system now outlawed in the USA. Discrimination against whites in Britain is justified she says to overcome centuries of oppression. Really? Immigrants in Britain have only been here for five minutes, so that can't be right. The answer is that Mee-Yan is working to a political agenda and the BBC is spending your TV licence money on it!

The only bright spot is that the self-hating lefties of the BBC may find their own careers blocked and denied promotion. Who knows, they may come to see the error of their ways.

● One programme to have been blasted

TORY DEATH THROES

The last month has been another disaster for the Tories. David Willetts MP quit his Cabinet post as Paymaster General after a commons committee effectively accused him of lying over his role in the 'cash for questions' scandal. Quentin Davies, a Tory MP on the enquiring committee said: "None of us found it possible to believe the evidence that he gave to the committee."

At around the same time, Sir Nicholas Scott was dumped by his constituency association, and so will not fight the next election. The MP was deselected after being found drunk face down in the gutter by police during the Tory party conference at Blackpool.

Sir John Gorst has withdrawn his support from the government in protest at the government's reneging on the deal it did with him and Hugh Dykes to save a local hospital in the summer. The loss removes the Government's majority in the Commons.

Another Tory, MP for Welwyn and Hatfield, David Evans has threatened to resign and force a by-election in a constituency matter over local councillors passing on a £49 million debt to council taxpayers.

recently is the radio4 series, The Archers, an everyday story of country folk. William Smethurst a former producer described it as poorly written tripe given over to political correctness and feminism. He said: "You don't get neo-Nazi thugs throwing acid at Hindu lawyers in the countryside. These things just don't happen."

If Vanessa [Whitburn, the current producer] wants to be involved in this sort of clumsy propaganda she should apply for a job on EastEnders."

TO THE POINT

Or, We Couldn't Put It Better Ourselves—A selection of items in the establishment press showing opinion moving our way.

that our balance of trade with Europe is in the red. It is only because our surplus with the rest of the world has paid for our deficit with Europe, that we have avoided bankruptcy. If we had relied on European trade rather than on global trade, we would have been destroyed.

Parliament must reassert its proud position as the supreme governing authority in this land, and should negotiate our withdrawal from the massive restrictions imposed on us by the Franco-German Alliance in Europe.

With good will on both sides there is no reason why this withdrawal cannot be undertaken in a friendly agreement that the United Kingdom will enjoy the same trading relationship with Europe as that which currently exists for Japan, Norway and Switzerland.

We are at a fateful crossroads in our history. May God help us to liberate this land once again — to restore our faith in Britain's ability to stand on its own two feet!

Viscount Tony pandy of Rhondda Letters, Daily Telegraph.

On December 6, 1972, as a 20-year-old subaltern in the Queens Lancashire Regiment on patrol in the Lower Falls area of Belfast, I was caught in a terrorist ambush. Our Saracen armoured vehicle was 'brewed up' by an RPG7 rocket propelled grenade designed to knock out a tank. The effect this projectile had on a 'soft-skinned' personnel carrier and its human cargo was everything — and more — its designers could have hoped for. Then the shooting started.

Some of us lost our careers — and limbs, eyes and hearing. I still suffer from constant tinnitus and regular discharges from both ears. I am totally deaf in my right ear and nearly 90 per cent deaf in my left.

To all you Conservatives out there, can you justify your Government's decision to refuse me and other deaf veterans any further increase in our disability pensions should our hearing deteriorate? I have voted Tory for 26 years — never again.

Sandy Macdonald, Letters, The Guardian.

There is only one solution to the violence and economic and social disruption and strife caused to British society through multi-racialism and that is sensible, orderly, well-funded repatriation for the benefit of us all.

All races need their own space for development and growth within their own racial, cultural and social structures.

Of course, this would mean thousands employed by the massive race industry bandwagon would be looking for other jobs.

Sylvia Noble, Letters, Lancashire Evening Telegraph.

SIR—Not since 1940 has the United Kingdom's sovereign right to govern its own affairs been in greater peril. The menacing insistence by Chancellor Kohl that his unshakeable goal is the total irreversible integration of the economies of the European Union countries should not be ignored.

We are in serious danger of allowing him to achieve domination over our economy by "sleight of hand diplomacy", whereas Adolf Hitler failed to do so by military might.

By postponing the decision on a single European currency until after the next election, Europhiles seek to play down the deadly significance of what is at stake. The election will be fought on a broad spectrum of domestic issues rather than on the key issue of whether Britain shall reclaim the controls secretly yielded up to foreign hands by the small print of the Maastricht Treaty.

When the High Court of Parliament at Westminster raged in fierce debate about the proposals of Maastricht, we were never told of the dire denial of our British rights that the treaty involved.

Indeed, overwhelming emphasis was put on the word 'subsidiarity', which was not an expression commonly understood either by Parliamentarians or the public at large. We were given to understand that major issues concerning this country would remain under the complete control of our own government.

Now we have abundant evidence that Maastricht handed over to the European Union massive control over our daily life. We have reached the stage when the United Kingdom must decide either to yield up any claim to control over our own judicial system, and over our economy, or to withdraw completely from membership of the European Union.

No one has yet been able to indicate the economic gain to us because of our membership of the European Union. The Treasury has regularly revealed

BLACK RACIST MP ISSUES GROVELLING APOLOGY

Diane Abbott, MP for Hackney North and Stoke Newington issued a grovelling apology last month to Scandinavian nurses after attacking Homerton hospital for recruiting blonde, blue-eyed nurses from Finland 'who may never have seen a black person, far less touched one, when they could be recruiting from the West Indies'.

Leaving aside the fortunate Finnish immigration policy, Abbott revealed her deep anti-white prejudices — particularly when it is considered that Britain has been recruiting West Indian nurses for years and that her own mother was one of them! BN can only say she's got a cheek.

Abbott later grovelled and said that she was "sorry and upset" that her remarks had been taken as anti-white.

The subplot provides another dollop of good news. Abbott also said that Britain shouldn't be recruiting from abroad when there is massive unemployment here at home. If even Abbott has made this connection, then there is hope for us all. A non-white population of four to five million or so and real unemployment at just under 4 million are interesting statistics. Of course, in both cases, the real numbers can only be guessed at since the figures

ANTI-WHITE DISCRIMINATION IS RACISM

White people all over the country are beginning to realise that the most potent form of racism in Britain discriminates against whites.

Back in September, a white woman, Lucy Neame, passed over for a top Civil Service job won compensation in an out of court settlement after claiming racial discrimination.

Another white woman passed over by the Civil Service, Alison Stringer, has also launched a claim that names the Civil Service and the Commission for Racial Equality in a case that could prompt 20,000 others to take the civil service to court. The CRE is named as co-respondant because it was aware of and encouraged the discrimination, and it is unlawful to induce another to discriminate.

Labour run London Borough of Islington has cut aid to a charity run from a church specialising in comforting the bereaved. It has cut the grant because the beneficiaries of the service are mainly white.

Nearby Enfield council has snubbed a cash plea from the Boys Brigade to buy new tents on the grounds the organisation is 'sexist', and Christian. Meanwhile the council has dished out £2,500 to the Sisters of Islam and the Nehanda Black Women's Support group.

GREETINGS FROM THE INTERNET

The British Nationalist Homepage continues to be well received. The following is an excerpt from an Internet website:-

Good Morning from the Zundelsite. I do far too little website visiting because there is no time, but one of my favourite places to drop in for brief gulps of air is the British Nationalists Homepage which can be found at <http://ngwmall.com/frontier/bnp/>

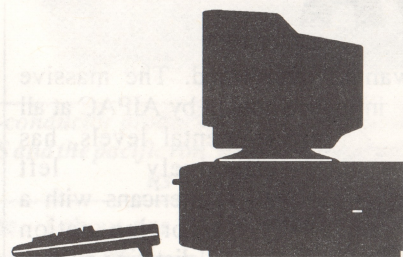

The excerpts of this ZGram are lifted from this website because I want to give you a flavour for the quality of articles that can be found at that electronic address. It is entitled 'The Emperor's New Clothes':

'Conspiracy researchers often do good work in exposing the key players in the New World Order drive, and in alerting us to some of their plans and intrigues. But they can also do us a disservice by encouraging the erroneous belief that 'they' are so all-seeing and powerful that there is nothing we can do to stop them except pray for divine intervention.

When are we going to get this defeatist nonsense out of our heads? The truth is that, while they may be able to postpone things a bit, they can't stop periodic financial crashes any more than they can stop earthquakes; debt-overload and a cycle of boom-and-bust are built into the very nature of their system. And yes, of course they will set up artificial safety valves to try to send the potential supporters of revolutionary change up blind alleys, just as their media prostitutes will lie about us, and their parliamentary puppets will pass laws against us. Our job isn't to whine about these tricks being 'unfair', but to organize a decisive minority to overcome such obstacles and turn the temporary popular disillusionment produced by the coming 'bust' into an unstoppable force for a total change of system.

It has been done before, and it can be done again. The very first step is to understand the coming time of opportunity and to inculcate the right confidence in our potential. So stop dwelling on the enormous odds against us and take heart instead from the even bigger problems facing the would-be rulers of the New World Order...' And so on...

BN BRIEFING

ROUGH JUSTICE

There's one less mugger in north London this year after a gang of muggers robbed and beat a woman at Waltham Cross station last month. One of a group of 'youths' fled onto the track straight into the path of an approaching train.

BIG BUSINESS GOES BUST

Canadian police last month smashed a multimillion pound smuggling ring in Ottawa estimated to have smuggled 5,000 Iraqis and Iranians into the country.

OLD DISEASES RETURN

Britain's Health Visitors Association have warned that diseases wiped out decades ago are making a comeback. Diseases not seen since Victorian times are more and more prevalent. Rickets, tuberculosis and children 'failing to thrive' through malnourishment and neglect have been found by one third of all Health Visitors in the last year.

12 MILLION INDIANS MURDERED EACH YEAR

India has a 10 per cent imbalance in the population under six-years-old, the reason for which is that 12 million baby girls are murdered each year by parents wanting boys.

MORE TORY LIES

"We have found the resources to put over the next three years, not 500, but an extra 5,000 officers on the beat." John Major, October 1995.

"We are well on track to delivering the first 1,000 officers promised last year." Michael Howard, October 1996.

Police numbers fell by 993 between 1992 and 1996. Home Office, December 1996.

WELFARE CULTURE

Despite government figures on falling unemployment, the rise in welfare continues unchecked. This Christmas, three million children spent the festive season in families with no working parents.

Letters

Write to: The Editor, British Nationalist, PO Box 117, Welling, Kent DA16 3DW.

Sir,
J. Warner (December letters) is quite right in saying that the opposition to British nationalism should be labelled as racists. They should also be labelled as extremists.

Lib, Lab, Con, the media, in fact the entire political establishment in Britain, are all openly opposed to white people. They are taking away our freedom of speech, blatantly ignore our majority wishes, and oppose our having any organisation to represent us, while funding groups to represent non-whites. If that is not racism and extremism then what is?

The BNP should start directing the terms racist and extremist against the people who oppose us, and who amply deserve to be described in that way. Let's stop them getting away with the trick of attacking us using adjectives which rightly apply to them.

Mr. P. Fisher,
London.

Sir,
just a quick note to say how much I enjoyed the poem The Private of the Buffs, by Sir Francis Doyle and reproduced in November's BN. Let's have much more of this inspiring stuff about our forebears. Keep it up.

Adrian Flick,
Hayes, Middlesex.

Sir,
What has happened to the political line of Lord Beaverbrook's old Daily Express in recent years?

George Galloway MP writes a column in it and he is not exactly an admirer of right wing politics. Recently, he reported on the Evander Holyfield victory over Mike Tyson to win one of the numerous alphabet titles on the go just now. Galloway was down-right insulting to Holyfield, and sneered at him for being an Uncle Tom, because Holyfield favours the system in the United States.

What offended me was the way Galloway jeered at those he called 'The international white trash'. These were whites who were glad that Tyson had been defeated. Do you believe the editor of the Express would have allowed any insults to be published about 'the international black trash'? The dual standard is blatant. He would have denounced that idea as racism. But what about us whites?

Harry Mullin,
Glasgow BNP.

Sir,
When black Labour MP Dianne Abbott said recently "Are Finnish girls best suited to nurse in multicultural Hackney?" It seemed only a small step from questioning the suitability of other white Europeans (us British!) For populating various other parts of inner city Britain. A glance at the black newspaper, The Voice, indicated their negative attitudes to whites.

Advertisements seem to contain too many black faces for my liking. Telecom giants BT recently sent me their 32 page glossy brochure for business users. Out of a total of 38 photographic illustrations in this brochure, 13 (34%) were of Negroes. When I complained I was asked if I had "a problem" with this situation. I have subsequently taken up an offer by Mercury Telecom which allows me to dial 132 before making calls over 30 miles, diverting calls along their network. My calls are now up to half the price of the same calls on BT. The point I am making is that we can fight back against the anti-white racists if we keep calm and take things a step at a time. All is not lost.

Dr. Johnson,
Nottingham.

Sir,
A question to all readers. What have you done for the British National Party today?

Sending in £20 to join and reading BN once per month is not enough. If you are unsure of what you can do, then here are a few ideas:- get in touch with your local group/branch and offer to help. Buy extra copies of BN and pass them around to family, friends, workmates etc., and leave some in public places. Write letters to your local paper mentioning the BNP and our policies. Send a donation in to the Election funds of either HQ or your nearest unit (or both). There are many ways to help and which ever you do does not matter. Just make a start and get active!

Neil Phillips,
Stoke BNP.

BNP ANNUAL RALLY ANNOUNCEMENT

The date for the party's annual rally is:-

SATURDAY JANUARY 25th

Everyone wishing to attend should keep this date free and contact their Organiser for travel details. As usual under Britain's wonderful 'democracy', the party is obliged to make tight security arrangements. Further details will be given to Organisers only. All Regional Organisers and Branch Organisers should make travel arrangements NOW!

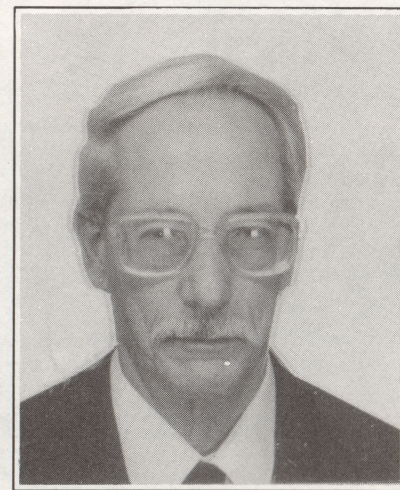

BNP ELECTION FEATURE

When the British National Party contests the next General Election the party will have distributed, courtesy of the Post Office, some two-million leaflets going into two-million homes.

For the BNP, this will be a massive recruitment exercise and also a mass exercise in fighting elections. Some time after the next General Election when the public finally sees through Labour (who BN believes will win), there will be enormous opportunities for the BNP. Having done our recruiting in this election and having trained branch organisers right across the country in the necessities of fighting elections, the party will be well placed to take advantage of any opportunity which presents itself.

This month, BN features Dr.

DR. DONALD STEVENS

Dr. Stevens is the party's most qualified candidate standing at the next election. As a teacher and lecturer, education is a special concern for Dr. Stevens, and he is well aware of the disastrous state of education in Britain today.

Dr. Stevens is a regular and popular speaker in the Hampshire region from which he hails and is a strong believer in excellence at all levels.

Aldershot, itself is a large constituency, with some 45,000 households, held by Tory MP, Julian Critchley. The constituency is fairly well-to-do with a middle and working class mixture and has been fully leafleted ready for the election.

Aldershot is known as an army town and is home to the Parachute regiment with several thousand army homes on special army estates.

Locally, publicity was obtained last year by the distribution of the party's 'Free Lee Clegg' leaflet — the soldier who had been imprisoned for shooting at suspected terrorists who turned out to be joy-riders running an army road block.

No elections have been contested by the party in Aldershot before and so the result will be eagerly awaited.

BNP RAISES PROFILE

Former soldier is candidate

A FORMER county soldier seems likely to stand as the British National Party's candidate in Herefordshire.

John Haycock, from Bromyard, is being primed for campaign in Leominster.

He was a candidate for the far-right BNP in Bromyard, in May's local government elections, but he was not elected.

My Haycock has been working with fellow members from Birmingham and Bristol who will help shape his campaign.

Mr Haycock has said he joined the controversial BNP because he believes "a halt in the decline of Britain is not possible under establishment parties".

BNP standard bearer, John Haycock showed just how easy it is to get into the local papers when he sent off a copy of October's BN which announced his candidature for the BNP in the constituency of Leominster to his local press.

Two papers including the Hereford Times more or less reproduced the entire article carried in BN on John's candidacy. Raising the party's profile is so easy — and done for so little effort.

BNP nominee at next election

A FORMER soldier looking to stand at the next general election for the controversial far-right British National Party.

Prospective candidate John Haycock is hoping to campaign in the Leominster constituency. If he does so it will be a rarity, in that he will be fighting for a rural seat. The BNP are largely perceived as having an urban power-base.

Mr Haycock stood as a BNP candidate in Bromyard during the most recent local government poll, but was not elected. A relatively new recruit to the BNP cause, he says he joined the party believing that a halt to the 'decline of Britain' was 'not possible' under establishment parties which 'bear the chief responsibility for that decline'.

He is being aided by activists from the Bristol and Birmingham area who will assist in distributing literature.

By its nature the BNP attracts controversy for some aspects of its manifesto, however Mr Haycock says he will also be arguing the party's views on issues facing the other major parties.

VACANCY

There are still vacancies left for General Election candidacies where people are desperate to vote for the BNP at the next election. All patriots wishing to be considered to represent the party should write to PO. Box 117, Welling, Kent DA16 3DW enclosing a political c.v.

There are no residential qualifications and seats could well be (and almost certainly will be) half way across the country from any candidate's home town. All that is required is that candidates are party members and on the electoral register.

GENERAL ELECTION FUND

TARGET: £10,000; TOTAL RAISED: £6,598

The party urgently needs to raise £10,000 in a very short time to meet contingency bills for the running of the party's General Election campaign from the centre. This fund is entirely separate from locally organised election funds, whose purpose will be to raise money to finance local candidates. This central fund is intended to build up an adequate financial reserve to ensure that the party has an efficient headquarters organisation and is able to meet numerous expenses which will be involved in the central running of its election machine.

The making of a professional video for the party's political broadcast has now been finished aside from minor editing. This showcase for the party has not come cheap and has cost around £1,500 for camera hire fees alone. Even so, this is cheap by industry standards.

Other costs include printing costs of the party's election manifesto; the hire of mobile telephones to assist organisers managing expenses incurred by personnel touring the country and in the transport of election literature to various constituencies; special publicity projects and not least, paying the printer a considerable sum in advance for the printing of the party's election addresses (Two million leaflets don't come cheap!). It is for this purpose the party is targeting to raise £10,000.

Last month, the appeal, raised £1,053 taking the party well over the half way mark. BN wishes to thank all those who have donated to the fund over the last month, a very good figure indeed. The time to give is now! Help us raise the MONEY we need! The party needs YOUR help. All readers should contribute to this fund. What have YOU done for the cause this month?

All donations should be marked 'General Election Fund' and sent to: PO. Box 117, Welling, Kent DA16 3DW

The Anglo-Saxons

Take strength from our great ancestors

If we look into the mists of time, back across the sea, deep within the vast, dark German oak forests, beyond the river Rhine. We find the infant ethnic English, 1700 years ago. Descendants of Herman, who defeated the Romans to maintain their — and our — genetic integrity.

They venerated a giant oak tree that grew on the site of Herman's victory, called the tree of Thor. They sang of Wotan and Niorth (Frey), and celebrated the divinity of the women folk and the earth goddess Jorth (Frig).

Around the year 300 AD, the Roman Empire was on the defensive. Centuries of slave importation, race-mixing and warfare had denuded the founding Nordic warrior blood. The ruling elite had grown soft, infertile and decadent. The underclass embraced Christianity which was subversive of Rome and in some cases even the military had become a rabble.

The mighty Saxons of the woods then went into confederation with the Angles of the coastal islands and western Denmark. Under pressure from a population explosion and fired with tales of Britannia brought back by mercenaries in the Roman army: an underpopulated land of milk and honey, the decision was made. The Angles would transport the Saxons in their ships. Exploratory raids though, showed strong defenses augmented by mercenaries, and a powerful Roman fleet destroyed Anglo-Saxon bases in the Orkney islands and Shetland. The invasion was postponed for a hundred years.

Exactly when is uncertain, but sometime after 410 AD, a raiding party must have landed. Unopposed, it returned to Germany. This was the time of Hengist and Horsa, of Beowulf and King Arthur — and the word was out, Britannia was undefended.

As the Whiteman began to settle the North American continent 1000 years later, so the Anglo-Saxons — our forebears — began to colonise Britain. Women and children were loaded into boats along with livestock and weapons. Land hunger drove the Angles and Saxons on to dispossess the Celts. Those who accepted the new overlords were free to stay, those who did not moved on to the north and west. The Anglo-Saxons poured into Britain in ever increasing numbers forming the early English kingdoms which extended as far as Edinburgh.

Anglo-Saxons make up most of the English genetic makeup and also account for a good portion of the Scots, from their settlement of the entire Eastern seaboard. Most of the rest of English genes derive from the Celts. This is why although Britain may be four nations, racially we are one — Anglo/Saxon/Celtic. These close tribal cousins are all our forebears. Their blood runs through all four British nations to give us our racial identity.

This picture shows the arrival of the Anglo-Saxons on that ancient morning. Some wearing Swedish armour others with horned helmets. This detail is reconstructed from a fragment of a plaque on the Sutton-Hoo helmet probably depicting a priest of Wotan.

The longboat prow derives from a similar one of the migration period from the river Scheldt, Belgium. Saxon derives from the word Saex, their favoured weapon which resembled a machete.

What we stand for

- The establishment of a government of national unity that will put an end to nationally divisive party warfare; the return of leadership and statesmanship to British affairs.
- An end to immigration and a start to repatriation.
- British withdrawal from the European Community: trade with Europe where it suits us but no political ties.
- The disbanding of the multi-racial Commonwealth and its replacement by a new Commonwealth of self-governing white states.
- British ownership and control of British industry and resources.
- Protection of British industry by the selective exclusion of foreign manufactured goods from the British market.
- An end to the financial swindle that causes inflation and slump, and its replacement by a sane and fair financial system that will give the people the purchasing power to buy the goods they produce.
- The subordination of the power of the City to the power of Government, and the harnessing of the City to the needs of British industry.
- The regeneration of British farming, with the object of achieving the maximum self-sufficiency in food; also the restoration of the fishing industry by protection of our traditional fishing grounds.
- A healthy environment for a healthy people — the protection of our countryside and an end to the architectural disfigurement of our towns and cities.
- Tougher treatment of criminals, including the return of the death penalty.
- A return to traditional methods of education, with stronger discipline in the classroom and the sacking of 'trendy' teachers.
- An alternative defence strategy: withdrawal from NATO; closure of all foreign military and air bases in Britain; British withdrawal from the war in former Yugoslavia, where no British interest is at stake; the bringing home of British forces from Germany; the strengthening of Britain's defences and a position of armed neutrality.
- An end to overseas aid and the allocation of the money saved to the financing of repatriation and greater help for the needy at home.
- The crushing of the IRA, the termination of the Anglo-Irish agreement and firm support for the loyalist majority in Northern Ireland.
- A return to healthy moral values aimed at strengthening the family and community.
